What are the costs?

Cost over time

The product costs are calculated as the result of the issue price less the fair value.

The fair value of the instrument is deductible from its market values or, if not available, from the value of financial instrument having similar characteristics, or alternatively by estimation using mathematical models. After the Issue Date, costs are equal to the mid price between the bid price and ask price.

The amounts shown here are the cumulative costs of the product itself, for 2 different holding periods. They include potential early exit penalties. The figures assume you invest USD 10,000. The figures are estimates and may change in the future.

The person selling you or advising you about this product may charge you other costs. If so, this person will provide you with information about these costs, and show you the impact that all costs will have on your investment over time.
